Tobacco Loose Leaf Warehouses
Are Making Preparations to Start Their Sales.

The managers of the local warehouses are fast making their preparations to open up the loose leaf market in this city and as soon as the sales start in Lexington they will start here and Mt. Sterling is better prepared this year to handle the crops than ever before. The Whitehall Loose Leaf Warehouse Company has completed its new sales floor and experts pronounce it one of the best lighted floors in the State. This concern has installed the latest automatic computing scale which will aid them very materially in handling quickly the large amount of tobacco handled by this company. Mr. H. W. Lockridge will be Secretary and will be assisted by Messrs. Richard Winn and Edward Bogie in the office. Mr. W. B. Greene will be in charge of the scales. Messrs. W. W. Eubank, Jr., Ralph Green, Hampton Montjoy, James Scobee and W. E. Heaton will be connected with this house this year. Mr. W. R. Tipton, who has been floor manager at the Farmers house for the past two seasons will be floor manager for the Whitehall this year. Mr. S. R. Adamson will again be starter. Mr. Bray will be the auctioneer. Mr. J. Will Clay, the well known tobacco man, is President of this company.

The Farmers' House will be managed this year by Mr. Tom Crockett, of Sharpsburg, who ably managed same last season. Mr. Rex Hall has been elected Secretary and will be assisted by Mr. Courtney Horton and Mr. Charles Bristow, of Owingsville. Mr. Clarence William will be floor manager and practically the same force of handlers has been engaged. Mr. A. S. Hart, one of the best known and most successful farmers in this section, is President of the company. This house lead in the number of pounds sold here last year and preparations have been made to handle the immense crops expected to be handled this year, in a most systematic manner.

The A. R. Robertson house will be managed by the same gentlemen that had it in charge last year. Mr. T. B. Robertson being Secretary, Mr. A. R. Robertson, President and Mr. Wm. Henderson, starter and floor manager. This house has also engaged the same force it had last year which insures efficient service. Mt. Sterling is proud of these enterprises which mean so much to the commercial welfare of our city and we urge every farmer of Montgomery and surrounding counties to bring their tobacco to our loose leaf market for we are sure they will get as much money for it as anywhere in addition to prompt, efficient, courteous treatment.

Let every man who calls himself a Democrat prove it on November 2d next.

JNO. M. ADAMS DRAWS LIMIT

For Having Liquor in His Possession for Sale With Government License.

John M. Adams, a former saloonist of this city, was tried in the county court Friday for having liquor in his possession for the purpose of sale in local option territory, he being the holder of a retail liquor dealer's license at the time and given the limit of $100 fine and cost and fifty days in the county jail. Adams prosecuted an appeal to the Circuit Court and the same will come up for trial at the January term. In the meantime he is at liberty on bond.

Last week we gave an account of a raid made by county officials on a supposed soft drink place above Jeffersonville and the arrest of one James Coffee and a boy named Oscar Prater. At the time the officers were of the belief that the place really belonged to Adams and as soon as they were convinced of this fact, a warrant was sworn out for his arrest and his trial set for the same day the Coffee and Prater cases had been assigned for. The Commonwealth elected to try Adams first and the proof introduced by County Attorney Senff was in substance as follows:

Sheriff Howell swore he had made the raid a week previously, under a search and seizure warrant and found some six barrels of the suspected beverage, which was not labeled in any way and arrested Coffee and Prater. Deputy Sheriff Montjoy proved the same facts and in addition the delivery of two bottles from the barrels seized to Prof. J. O. LaBach, State Chemist at Lexington. County Clerk Greene proved the existence of local option in Jeffersonville precinct and the fact that Adams had a license to sell soft drinks there. Mr. J. C. McNeal and Mr. W. O. Pierce of the C. & O. R. R. Co., proved the delivery of the barrels to Adams, which had been shipped him by the Lexington Brewing Company and billed as containing less than one-half of one per cent. alcohol. Prof. LaBach, who was present in court and proved a very interesting and intelligent witness proved the analysis of the samples delivered to him by Mr. Montjoy and the fact that each contained 4.34 per cent. alcohol, or just the same as ordinary beer. County Attorney Senff then introduced a certificate from the Collector of Internal Revenue showing that Adams had a government retail liquor dealer's license, which is prima facie evidence of guilt under the law, and then surprised all present by introducing James Coffee, who swore he was merely acting as Adams' agent. So plain was the proof that Adams did not offer to take the witness stand and his appeal is thought to be only for the purpose of delay.

James Coffee was then fined $100, which is the limit, for having the beverage in his possession. He also appealed to the Circuit Court. The Prater case was passed until next Saturday.

Under the law the beer cannot be destroyed, but must be kept until the appeal is tried. The officers are determined that the law shall be strictly observed and any citizen who suspects that a beverage is being sold in the county containing more than one-half of one per cent. of alcohol (this being the limit allowed by law), will render a material service by delivering a sample of same to the County Attorney who will have it analyzed and institute prosecutions against any one found to be violating the law.

MAKES ARGUMENT BEFORE U. S. SUPREME COURT

Attorney John A. Judy has returned from Washington, D. C., where on last Thursday he appeared before the Supreme Court of the United States and made the argument on behalf of the State in the case of The Providence Life Insurance Company Vs. State of Kentucky. It is a suit for back taxes against the insurance company. Mr. Judy has represented the State in all the litigation and won the case before the Franklin Circuit Court and also in the Court of Appeals. The splendid manner in which he has handled this case is quite a compliment to Mr. Judy's ability as a lawyer.

SALE OF TROTTERS.

E. R. Little sold last week to Mr. Harrison Manis, of Elwood, Ind., the 2-year-old bay colt Brook Chenault by Silent Brook, dam Stella Chenault dam of Peter, Donna 2:05½. Weanling filly by Philistine 2:04½, out of the dam of Geo. Gano 2:02½ and weanling filly by San Francisco 2:07½, dam by Moko and she out of dam of Walnut Hall. These are all royally bred and Mr. Manis certainly got good ones. They were shipped Friday to Elwood by express and strange to say, the cost by express was $25. If they had been shipped by freight the charges would have been $70.

SUPREME COURT KNOCKS OUT CONTENTION OF WETS

The Supreme Court of the United States rendered a decision Monday dismissing the appeals from Scott and other counties, from the decision of our Court of Appeals, for want of jurisdiction. Our court upheld the County Unit Law and the saloon men, solely for the purpose of delay, appealed to the Supreme Court. The decision came earlier than was expected. As no federal question was involved, the decision is in keeping with the opinions of the best lawyers everywhere.

STOP BURNING LEAVES

There is a city ordinance against the burning of leaves and the people are requested and urged not to violate same. Leaves make splendid fertilizer for gardens so, spread them on the gardens instead of burning them and spreading disease germs. This notice is given in the hope that the people will heed the law but if the law is not obeyed the officers will be directed to arrest the offenders.

CHARLTON PREWITT DEAD

Charlton Evans Prewitt, sixteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Prewitt, died in a Cincinnati hospital Thursday where he had been taken for an operation. He was a bright, manly boy and many hearts were made sad when the news of his death was learned.

It is sad to give up one whose influence among men would doubtless have been for good; who by precept and example was so well calculated to spread abroad the blessed influence of godly living. Yet He who doeth all things well, makes no mistakes. The human link snapped asunder on earth is forged anew in heaven. The yearning parents mourn not as one without hope. It is true that when beautiful youth is gone not much of life remains; hence the dear one's eyes are closed to all earthly trials. In his springtime of enthusiasm and tenderness, ere the sunshine of hope and joy was extinguished, he passed to the glorious beyond.

While the silence of death wraps and chills us at this moment, memories, sweet and precious, come crowding in.

Death is a hard master. He would take from us of our brightest and best, but he cannot even mar memory. It will serve as a balm to our wounded hearts.

Thus closed the early life of one who, being dead, yet speaketh.

May time bring its resignation, and may the shores of eternity that receives his soul, surround it with everlasting sunshine and flowers.

SENTIMENT FOR GOOD ROADS

Is Rapidly Spreading Over County and Citizens are Lending a Helping Hand.

The sentiment for good roads is rapidly spreading over the county and citizens are showing a greater interest and a willingness to help than ever before. This week Messrs. Ben F. Perry, R. C. Gatewood, Mart Wells, H. Bruce Duff, J. T. McCormick, J. T. Coons and others are spreading several cars of crushed stone on the Spencer pike, while Messrs. T. J. Douglas, R. R. Whittitt and others are spreading a large amount of rock on the Levee pike. This work is done by these public-spirited gentlemen free of charge, the county furnishing the rock. County Attorney Senff informed the writer that this year in free teams, rock and gravel, there had been given the county over two thousand dollars by generous citizens. This proves the existence of a growing sentiment for good roads and speaks well for our citizenship. This year more real high grade work has been done in the county than ever in its history and if the same intelligence and zeal are displayed in coming seasons, we confidently expect to see Montgomery county in a comparatively short time have as good roads as any county in the State. We can have them if everybody will help.

PROMINENT COUPLE MARRY

Miss Marion Dudley White Becomes
Bride of Mr. Garnett Reed
Chenault.

In the presence of a number of relatives and a few personal friends on Tuesday afternoon at two thirty o'clock, Miss Marion Dudley White eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence White, and Mr. Garnett Reed Chenault were united in marriage.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Horace W. Kingsbury, of the Somerset church at the beautiful country home of the bride's parents on the Maysville pike.

The marriage of these young people unite two of Montgomery's most prominent families.

The bride is a lovely girl, possessing those sweet traits of disposition and character that has made her a decided favorite in the younger society circles. Mr. Chenault is a manly, upright gentleman who numbers his friends by his acquaintances. The happy couple left on the C. & O. train for Louisville where they will spend a few days and from there they will go to Indianapolis for a short visit. Upon their return they will reside with Mr. Chenault's mother, Mrs. Emma Chenault, on the Camargo pike. The Advocate extends best wishes for a long, happy and prosperous life.

OF COURSE HE WAS

Very likely Mr. Morrow was afraid of spoiling his kid gloves if he attempted to ride a mule fourteen miles. Which was the most important, his gloves or the breaking of his engagement? What Owsley Stanley is, he is, an old brindle cow would have done, if nothing better was at hand, before he would break his engagement with those good mountain Democrats. Stanley had a crowd of 2,500 and Morrow 167 at Prestonsburg. This gives Stanley a majority of 2,333 as a starter. Where will it stop?

Easter Cloud, the stallion shown by H. C. Barham, of Tennessee, in the $2,000 stake at recent Kentucky State Fair and winner of the $3,000 stake at St. Louis, Mo., making a most sensational show, was bred by John Boardman, of Mt. Sterling, and his brother, of Carlisle. His sire, McDonald Chief, and Red Cloud, the sire of his dam, were both Montgomery county horses and owned by Wyatt Bros.

SYNOPSIS.

Professor Stilliter, psychologist, and Gordon Barclay, millionaire, plan to preach to the world the gospel of efficiency through a young and beautiful woman who shall believe that she is a heaven-sent messenger. They kidnap the orphaned little Amesbury girl, playmate of Tommy Steele, and conceal her in a cavern, in care of a woman, to be molded to their plan as she grows up. Fifteen years elapse. Tommy is adopted by Barclay, but loses his heirship and on a hunting trip discovers Celestia. Stilliter takes Celestia to New York. Tommy follows, and she gets away from both of them, and her real work begins. At Barclay's invitation she meets the business barons who are converted to her new gospel. She makes an impression on the society world. Tommy joins the labor ranks. Tommy plays Joseph to the wife of a modern Potiphar and is rescued from a lynching party by Celestia. She prevents a massacre of strikers, and settles the strike. Mrs. Gundorf and Mary Blackstone conspire. Stilliter, jealous, begins to use his hypnotic power treacherously. Barclay begins a campaign for the presidential nomination and Celestia spreads her propaganda of efficiency as Barclay's platform. Tommy opposes her and Mary Blackstone plots Celestia's death. The plot fails, and Mrs. Gundorf dies. Stilliter hypnotizes Celestia to join him, prepares for their marriage, and wires Barclay she has gone back to heaven. Tommy and Freddie the Ferret rescue her and take her, still under Stilliter's unholy spell, to the cave she knew as heaven. Stilliter attempts to murder Tommy and again flees with Celestia. Barclay abjures greed and lust of power and desires real greatness.

FOURTEENTH INSTALLMENT CELESTIA HEARS THE TRUTH.

The sound was not repeated. Gradually the professor's snarled lips relaxed and closed over his teeth. But for some time longer he stood listening and trying to see into the shadows. Then he turned to Celestia and, after a moment of silent and greedy contemplation, spoke.

"We are going to be married," he said. "We are about to enter the church." And he followed suggestion by suggestion, it is not quite clear why, unless he had in him a streak of that quality which causes a cat to play with a mouse.

In Celestia's mind rose a shadowy picture of an altar, of a clergyman in a white surplice, of candles that burned in candelabra, of an altar boy, of a great bell made of flowers. She was standing facing the clergyman and the altar, at the foot of the steps which led to it.

Now she was being married. The clergyman was asking her some long solemn question. Now she was repeating words after him, but only with her lips.

"I, Celestia, take—"

Freddie the Ferret had never been more puzzled in his life. He was not very familiar with the marriage ceremony, but still he recognized the fact that Professor Stilliter and Celestia, standing a little way from the log hut, were going through something of the kind.

Driven by a curiosity which overmastered his fear of Stilliter Freddie crept out of his hiding place and advanced over a broad outcropping of granite on feet which made no sound. The mockery of a marriage service over, Professor Stilliter no longer made any effort at self-control; he seized her in his arms, and was himself seized by the collar and jerked vigorously backward.

It was so sudden and so unexpected that for a moment Professor Stilliter's heart stood still, and he almost died of fright. Then with a kind of whining cry he tore himself loose and faced about.

Something bright and shining flashed in the moonlight, there was a sound of glass shattered to atoms, and for the moment Professor Stilliter was stone blind.

He gave a grunt of rage and reached into his waistcoat pocket for the case which he supposed contained his one remaining spare pair of glasses. As we know, the case was empty.

Unmanned by this horrible surprise, the professor forgot his intended victim for a moment and Freddie, seizing the golden opportunity, made a desperate effort, capsize the professor, eluded the snatch which the latter made at him, and won free.

Professor Stilliter rose slowly to his feet, his face pale as with the anticipation of death. So he stood a moment, and then in a voice that shook, he called to Celestia, who had remained standing in front of the hut.

"Come here, Celestia," he called. She moved obediently toward him. But the Ferret threw himself in her way. Some instinct told him that these two people must be kept apart. Celestia did her best to reach Stilliter, but Freddie prevented her by force. He threw his skinny arms around her and dragged her slowly in an opposite direction.

Stilliter did not repeat the order to "come." He merely called to her to "hurry." And obediently she hurried; but in the direction which Freddie had been forcing her to take. She had hurried a hundred feet before Stilliter realized his mistake. He called to her to stop, to turn back, to come to him, and all these things she tried to do, but Freddie would not let her.

Professor Stilliter's commands to Celestia grew fainter and fainter, until at last they could no longer be heard. And now the moon had sailed her course through the heavens and had descended behind the mountain, and there was a darkness in which Freddie was almost as helpless as the victim of his chance blow.

He still had Tommy's knife and with this he cut a great pile of tender balsam for Celestia to lie on. By good fortune the night was not cold. Celestia lay till morning without moving or closing her half-open eyes. And Freddie stood guard over her, then sat guard, and then slept.

Stilliter also slept after a time. He had found his way to the hut, and had controlled his panic-stricken mind sufficiently to reason that if he was to find help or if help was to find him it would not be at night but in the day-time.

He had many nightmares. Toward dawn he waked in a cold sweat. In his sleep he had asked himself the question:

"How will I know when it is day?"

Tommy found his candle at last, lighted it and retraced his steps by means of the chalk marked at the turns and forks to the mouth of the cave. He had not expected to find Celestia. And yet it shocked and unnerved him not to find her. He called to her at the top of his lungs, twice, then thrice, and to Freddie. He had no answer. To continue shouting was a waste of breath. He would need all his breath perhaps to catch up with Stilliter and Celestia. Already he was on his way down the trail which led eventually to where he had left the purloined automobile, and along which somewhere or other he hoped to come up with the psychologist and his victim.

Stilliter, Tommy reassured himself on coming up with the abandoned automobile, must have left his own, taken to the woods and reached the vicinity of the cave by this very trail. Why hadn't Freddie the Ferret given warning? Tommy thought that the poor boy had probably been shot down in cold blood. There was no time to look for the body. Tommy proceeded at a dog trot—not a run exactly, but that gait, a little faster than a walk, that makes the least demand upon the wind and muscles. He kept this up, with occasional lapses into fast walking, until the moon set.

"They must have had a tremendous start of me," he thought, "or else," and his heart sank, "they're gone some other way." He paused abruptly and hesitated. "Why," he thought, "he wouldn't make the poor child take this long tramp again without a good rest. Even I don't like it any too well, and I'm strong as a horse. He's probably taken her somewhere just out of ear-shot of the cave, he may know of some shelter, and I've been getting farther and farther from her instead of nearer to her."

Still Tommy could not make up his mind to go back to the cave. Nothing was sure. If Stilliter was somewhere

Freddie the Ferret had never been more puzzled in his life. He was not very familiar with the marriage ceremony, but still he recognized the fact that Professor Stilliter and Celestia, standing a little way from the log hut, were going through something of the kind.

she's just had a square meal and she believes the dog, but that can't last forever."

Having eaten, Tommy rested for half an hour, took up the heavy basket, and once more hit the trail. But now he went slowly and stopped often to rest. He had seldom been so tired in his life, and only an overmastering love and anxiety for Celestia kept him going.

It was no longer night. It wasn't yet dawn; but that lovely interval between when in what appears to be pitch darkness, things become suddenly visible. Tommy stumbled on, shifting the heavy basket frequently from hand to hand.

As it got to be broad day, he was careful to make no noise. At any moment now he might hear sounds of Stilliter and Celestia approaching.

About this time Freddie and Celestia (or rather Freddie alone; for Celestia merely suffered herself to be led), were trying to find their way back to the cave. But for once the luck of the tenement dweller was at fault. A man brought up on numbered streets and rectangular city blocks has no incentive to develop a bump of locality, and at last Freddie, with cold fear in his heart, admitted to himself that he was hopelessly lost. I shouldn't have said hopelessly; the mariner has his sextant and compass to guide him across the waters; the woodsman has the sun and the stars, and the mossy sides of trees to help out in intuitive sense of direction, and Freddie, feeling in his inside pocket, found to his unmitigated relief that he had his pack of cards.

Forthwith he made Celestia sit down, and he knelt, and having shuffled his greasy and shabby deck, he dealt thirteen cards face down in a very accurate circle. Then one by one, a look of faithful expectancy on his face, he turned them over.

Twelve of the cards he then gathered up and put with the pack. The thirteenth was the ace of hearts.

This Freddie lifted with reverence and great care, so as not to change the direction in which it pointed, until it reached the level of his eye and he could sight along it.

A blasted pine standing alone was the first landmark to which the goddess of chance directed Freddie the Ferret.

"We're not lost now," he said, and he helped Celestia to her feet.

You may call it what you please. The fact remains that Freddie the Ferret had had a return of his usual luck and had hit upon the general direction of the cave.

From the foot of the blasted pine he selected another landmark and pressed on.

At about this time Professor Stilliter waked from that sleep in which he had asked this question:

"How will I know when it is day?"

He got up and groped about in the hut until he had located the door. He opened this and went out. He sat down in the warm sunshine to think out a plan.

It was far better that Professor Stilliter should be found than that he should go through the dangers and agonies of seeking. Under ordinary circumstances he knew the region like the palm of his hand. The cave itself he could find his way about in as easily as in his own house. But knowing things when you see them is very different from knowing them when you can't see them and can only touch them. What is merely a depression by day is an abyss by night.

In wooded countries there is nothing better than a fire to attract attention. If any lonely or hungry person is in sight of that fire that person will go to it, across lakes and mountains, if necessary.

"Well," he thought, "I'll have to burn my shelter. It will make just the big smoke I need. And I shan't be much the worse off. It won't look like a campfire, but like the beginning of a forest fire. It ought to bring a watchman."

The logs of which the hut was built were thoroughly seasoned and full of pitch. By aid of the heap of old dried-out balsam which had served him for a pillow during the night Professor Stilliter succeeded in setting it on fire. His ears told him that the fire was going to be a success, and presently, too, the heat that began to emanate from it.

He crawled to a little distance and sat down with his back to the fire. It wasn't likely that anyone would come in less than an hour; it might be many hours before anyone came. But he was very sure that his fire would bring someone eventually.

Sitting and waiting, now making attempts to calculate the passage of time, and falling signally, now thinking unhappy thoughts, and now vengeful, passionate thoughts, he sat on and on for eternities of time.

Professor Stilliter's fire was spreading. It was a smell of burning cloth that made this clear to him. The professor's coat had caught fire. He moved farther away until there seemed to be nothing about him but unburnable rock.

He sat down once more. He was in the midst of one of those great open splashes of granite on the mountain side. As a matter of fact, he was near the edge of one of these masses. Within reach of his hand was a dense tangle of tinder-dry scrub trees, shrubs and dead wood.

Suddenly this shrubbery caught and went off almost like an explosion. Professor Stilliter staggered backward from the intense heat, and realized presently that he was backing into another area of heat equally intense.

On his hands and knees he made off in a direction that took him winding between the two; he went quite a long way. In his breast was the first touch of panic.

Wherever he went the fire found him out and drove him on. A strong wind had risen, and as the flames winnowed their way down the mountain side and across they found more and larger stuff to feed on.

Professor Stilliter got hurt every now and then. His hands and knees were lacerated, his face had had some hard knocks. His blind eyes smarted with smoke and the air which he breathed half choked him.

To a man with average sight it would have been an easy matter to have eluded that fire. It had descended the mountain in a narrow path. It was Professor Stilliter's misfortune that he had been unable to sidestep it. By taking up his original stand at the back of the hut, instead of at the front, he need not have moved until help came.

Even now old man Smellsgood was standing at a comfortable distance from the red-hot ruins of the hut and wondering what fool had set it on fire and why.

Through the forest itself the fire was only burning a broad path, confined to this by open barrens and swamps or by timber too green and well watered to burn. From the mouth of the cave it looked like a receding column of smoke, and there was no real menace in it for anyone but Professor Stilliter. Him it hounded on and on. And now, continually, like a child that babbles, he was asking God to save him, Christ to pity him.

As he lost blood, his progress became slower and slower, and death stared him in the back. He was to have one short reprieve. He came to a gravelly bank so steep that in trying to get down it he began to slide. He could not save himself and was dumped presently into the ice cold deep water.

For a moment the shock refreshed and invigorated him and gave him hope. He could swim, and water cannot burn. Whether he was in a pond or a lake of some size he did not know. If a lake and not very large, he could swim across and at least find safety from the fire. At first it was easy to swim in the right direction, guided by the heat that came from behind, but after awhile it was not so easy.

He was a good swimmer, and while floating and treading water he managed to get rid of his shoes and most of his clothes. He would need them when he got ashore. Yes, but he would have to do without them.

He began to tire again, and there was no sign of the opposite shore.

He was in one of the narrowest lakes in that part of the Adirondacks, but it was several miles long and he was trying to swim it from end to end. The jig was up.

When he realized this he hastened the inevitable by screaming and screaming and then by bursting into tears and sobbing.

After a while his final struggles stopped. He floated in the water with his face under; a kind of foam came to the surface from the corners of his mouth. Twice he drew up his knees and kicked feebly, as if he were still alive and trying to swim.

After a long time Freddie the Ferret, leading Celestia as if she had been blind, blundered to the foot of the cliff in which was the main entrance to the cave. Into this he penetrated a little way and there began to shout for Tommy with all his might. The only response was the echoing of his voice.

So Freddie went back to Celestia, and there she stood with a bewildered, puzzled look on her face, and both hands being held by Tommy Barclay himself, who was breathing as if he had been running up hill.

"Don't look puzzled now, Celestia," Tommy was saying, "you know me. It's all right. I'm the driver, you know, and you have to obey the driver. So wake up. Be yourself."

Then Celestia spoke. "The driver," she said, "is dead. Professor Stilliter told me."

"Told you I was dead?" Celestia nodded and turned away as if the matter was of no further interest.

"Freddie," exclaimed Tommy, "what are we going to do about Celestia? Has she been this way ever since I went into the cave?"

"She's bugged," said Freddie simply.

"What's happened? How did you keep Stilliter from getting hold of her? He thought he'd shot me. I couldn't get out of the cave as quickly as he could. I supposed, of course, he'd run off with her."

"He did," said Freddie laconically. "But here she is. What became of him?"

"Dunno."

"What do you know, Freddie?"

Then the Ferret told his little story of battle, his fight to the finish in the moonlight.

"I gets him by the collar," said Freddie, "and beats his face up. And I knocks his specs off and they busts, and he ain't got no more, and I ducks out from under, and he calls to her, and she wants to go to him and I won't let her."

"Where was this?"

"Dunno."

"Far from here?"

"Dunno."

"But you must know in a general way?"

Freddie shook his head.

"Look at me, Freddie! You do now."

But the Ferret's spine stiffened, and he met Tommy's eyes without flinching. He, too, had his standards of right and wrong. Let the evil-doer suffer!

"I know," he said, "but I don't tell."

"But, good God, Freddie—a blind man—in this wilderness!"

"Can go to hell," said Freddie.

"Now, look here!"

"What are you two talking about?"

The man and the boy wheeled toward Celestia as suddenly and with as much wonder as if she had pointed a gun and shot at them. She had spoken in her natural voice. She spoke again.

"Stilliter?"

"Yes, Celestia; we were speaking of him. He is in awful trouble."

"He was in awful trouble," her voice was sweet and gentle, but very serious. "He's been trying to get me to help him, but Freddie wouldn't let me go, and he couldn't make me understand just where he was. The fire was after him. He couldn't see and he got hurt trying to get away from the fire. But it chased him and chased him, until he fell into a lake and drowned."

Her words carried an astounding weight of conviction. She felt the horror of her knowledge and she had suffered while her enemy suffered, and yet she was serenely sure that Stilliter's departure had left the world a little better off.

"We'll have a look for him when we've had a bite to eat," said Tommy. "I'm all in at the moment. Freddie, run down the trail till you come to a big square basket and bring it back here, will you?"

"What are we all doing here, anyway?" asked Celestia.

Tommy told her. It was quite a long story. It was hard to make her understand at first, but it grew easier and easier. It was as if she was rapidly convalescing from that sickness of mind into which Professor Stilliter's dark powers had thrown her. Freddie came with the basket, and he and Celestia ate ravenously, and Tommy less ravenously, because he had already broken his fast and because it was so wonderful to be telling Celestia all about what had been happening and to have her understand.

"And that's the door of the cave where you say I was brought up?"

"Where you were brought up, Celestia—upon my word of honor."

She shook her head, but without conviction.

"I want to see," she said.

But Tommy leaped to his feet.

"You're the rascal that stole my clothes!" he cried.

Old Man Smellsgood grinned from ear to ear.

"Well, I'll forgive you," said Tommy, "and give you money if you'll find Professor Stilliter."

The Indian shook his head and said, "No good."

"He's got a lot of money on him, and he'll give you some if you find him and he's still alive."

"Dead?"

"Maybe." And Tommy told briefly what had happened and what Celestia believed had happened. The Indian set off at a great pace toward the column of smoke which marked where the fire had been checked by the lake.

Then Celestia and the two others lighted candles and went into the cave. They went in silence from cavern to cavern. Here the electric plant still looked in good running order. Here a man might hide and pretend to be a voice. They did not explore the whole extent of the great subterranean; only enough to prove that someone had lived there for many years in a state of pseudo-magnificence, something like the settings of an expensive Broadway production.

"Doesn't any of it seem familiar?" Tommy asked.

She turned to him and threw her arms round his neck and began to cry like a little child.

"Hell!" said Freddie.

"No," said Tommy, stoutly. "It's turned out to be heaven after all. Beat it, Freddie!"

To Celestia the train seemed to move no faster than a snail. To get back to the world in time to undo what she had done, before it should be too late, occupied her mind to the exclusion of almost everything else. Stilliter was dead. His influence had no longer power on her. She became more rational and human with every passed hour, and she became no less sweet.

They had waited at the cave until old man Smellsgood came back with definite news of Stilliter's death.

"Him plenty enough dead," he said, and nodded repeatedly. Then, with a mouth so innocent that even butter wouldn't have melted in it, he said:

"He not got a lot of money on him."

"Not now. I know that," said Tommy, "as well as you do."

When at last they reached New York they proceeded at once to Madison Square Garden, where a tremendous pro-Barclay meeting was in session. The triumvirate were all present. Celestia, in a dark cloak, with a veil over her face, waited outside with Freddie until Tommy should signal to her to enter.

He came presently.

"Sturtevant is speaking," he said quickly. "He's explaining how you, your work done, have gone back to heaven—and, by heaven, Celestia, they believe him! You might think it was Matthew, Mark, Luke or John addressing a lot of early Christians; people are sobbing. Better come now and get it over with."

Sturtevant broke off in the midst of his peroration. A slim, white, commanding figure was moving slowly toward him. His jaw dropped. Then he dropped to his knees and, a look of rapture on his face, he cried in a voice of thunder, "Celestia!"

Even this piece of play-acting could not save the situation for him. The people had caught in his face the first swift-fleeting look of unutterable fright and dismay. And now they had caught sight of Celestia, and rose to her with a great roar of sound.

She passed slowly through them, mounted the platform, turned, lifted one hand a little, and there was silence.

She asked them to be patient with her. She had wronged them. Perhaps she had done irreparable harm in the world. But it would be wonderful if they would listen to her once more—they had always been so good to her—

And presently she had them enthralled in the spell of her clear, sweet voice. And she told them her story from the beginning. And when she had finished she just stood and looked straight ahead of her. And murmurs swept the vast place, as little breezes go dappling over smooth water. Then Threw Her Arms Around His Neck. Celestia turned and pointed to the triumvirate.

And a man with a voice like a trumpet stood up in the midst of the hall and started for the platform, shouting, "Kill! 'Lynch!"

The man was Gundorf.

Then hell broke loose. And the three arch conspirators turned and, darting between the curtains at the back of the platform, fled for their lives.

But nobody hurt Celestia, or thought of hurting her, and after a time Tommy got her away and took her out of the city to a little town in Westchester county, and left her there until he could get a license to stay there with her.

MR. BECKHAM UPON THE STUMP

It will be welcome, though not expected, news that Senator Beckham has taken the stump for the Democratic State ticket in Kentucky—welcome to the friends of Mr. Beckham because it gives further evidence of his fidelity and devotion to the cause of Democracy—welcome to the friends of Mr. Stanley because they realize that Mr. Beckham, more than any other one man in Kentucky, can solidify the Democratic strength behind Mr. Stanley and the other nominees.

Senator Beckham's Democracy has been put to the acid test. He speaks today under the most provoking circumstances.

For weeks after the primary at which Mr. Stanley was successful the leading liquor newspapers of the State continued almost daily assaults upon Senator Beckham, Mr. McChesney and other leaders of a cause which went down in defeat in that primary. Characteristically offensive, and in terms of coarsest abuse, the editor of the Courier-Journal thundered his denunciations, presumably, to influence them to "limp in the rear" or to bolt the ticket, whichever Waterson precedent they desire to follow. There was, however, no word or act upon the part of Senator Beckham, or those who led the recent primary fight with him, that justified such ill-tempered and untimely attacks. They accepted defeat, a new experience to them, with the best grace, and are now giving most loyal and heavy support to the ticket.—Elizabethtown News.

So grave was the situation at Lemberg before the Teutons drove the Russian forces before them that the German Kaiser deemed it advisable to appear on the scene of action in person. The Archduke Frederick of Austria was on a similar mission to urge the Austrian troops on. After the evacuation by the Russians the Kaiser and the archduke met to felicitate one another on the valor of their men.

EXTRACTS FROM SENATOR BECKHAM'S SPEECH

Falmouth, October 18th.—"Let's elect the Democratic ticket that was nominated and keep Kentucky in control of the Democratic party."

"Will the Republicans fool the people again? Why try the same Doctor when he has killed three patients?"

"I am a Democrat and in the Democratic party; the majority rules, therefore I am for the whole ticket."

"It is our duty to send to Woodrow Wilson a message of encouragement. Let us encourage him by a big Democratic majority in Kentucky on November 2nd."

EXTRACTS FROM MR. MCCHESNEY'S SPEECH

Lawrenceburg, October 18th.—"I have come to Lawrenceburg today to urge all Democrats of this county to follow their usual custom and vote the straight Democratic ticket at the coming election."

"I entered the primary in good faith and I accept the result as a good Democrat ought, and shall give the whole ticket my loyal support."

"Majority rule is the cardinal principle of Democracy and for this campaign the majority has spoken and every Democrat should vote the straight ticket."

SPELLING IS HARD TO LEARN

Tests in Public Schools Show Surprising Results, Says Federal Bureau of Education.

Washington.—"Seven out of every 100 third grade public school children cannot spell 'has,' said a statement issued by the United States bureau of education. "This and other curious evidences of the special problems inherent in the teaching of spelling are brought out by Dr. Leonard P. Ayres of the Russell Sage foundation in a study just published." Doctor Ayres has had made a test from 1,000 words that constitute 90 per cent of the English language ordinarily used. He has found that "spelling ability" is easily and scientifically determined. For example, nine words of most frequent use, "the," "in," "so," "no," "now," "man," "ten," "bed" and "top," revealed that second grade pupils, on an average, spelled correctly 94 per cent of these words. At the other extreme of the scale the words "judgment," "recommend" and "allege" were found to be spelled correctly by just 50 per cent of eighth grade pupils.

NOISY BOATS ANNOY PASTOR

Prays That it May Rain Every Sunday During the Remainder of Summer.

Pittsburgh.—If rain should fall every Sunday throughout the rest of the boating season it probably will not grieve Rev. J. S. Averman, pastor of the Tarentum Evangelical Lutheran church. The church stands close to the Allegheny river. Not infrequently the chug chug of pleasure craft seriously disturbs worship.

In the midst of a morning service, while Rev. Mr. Averman was approaching an eloquent period of his sermon, a noisy motor began to cough and bark. The minister stopped and remained silent until the noise from the river had died down.

Then he astonished the congregation by offering a fervent prayer that it might rain every Sunday during the summer. Then he resumed his sermon.

CHILD ATTACKED BY ROOSTER

Cuts Her Face and Spurs Her, But is Beaten Off by Neighbors of the Family.

New York.—Mildred, two years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Loughlin of Patchogue, L. I., was seated on the lawn of her home, when she was attacked by a big stray rooster, who wanted the cake the baby had in her chubby fist.

The child tried to beat the big bird off and alarmed the neighborhood with her screams. The rooster pecked at her face, coming dangerously close to her eyes, and then catching her hair in his beak he spurred her face, drawing blood. The rooster was killed by one of the rescuers and will make soup for the baby while she is convalescing.

THE RIGHT KIND OF DEMOCRACY

The Democrats of Kentucky must stand shoulder to shoulder against the common enemy. They should forget the disappointments that came to some of them in the primary. Last year after Beckham beat him in the primary for the nomination for the United States Senate, Stanley got behind Beckham and stumped the State from one end to the other in Beckham's behalf. The man who supported McChesney and McDermott in the primary should follow the example set by Stanley and show that in spite of differences within the party, all Kentucky Democrats stand together when fighting Republicans.

—Cadiz Record.

The Record was one of the strongest supporters of McChesney for the nomination, but the above has the right ring of true Democracy. The Democratic ticket is entitled to support of all Democrats and those Democrats who voted for McChesney and McDermott, who do not vote for Stanley and the rest of the Democratic ticket are not only disloyal to the party but they are disloyal to the candidates for whom they voted, as both of them are on the stump for the Democratic ticket.

THE REASON

The reason why woman's suffrage makes less progress in the South than in the North is that we love our women better in the South.—Elizabethtown News.

At any rate it can be said that the Russians are a retiring sort of people.

Some folks are so used to looking for trouble they don't recognize Joy when she gives them a song and dance on the highway.

We love our friends, not because of their faults but in spite of them.

Getting in debt is like falling in a well. Getting out is like climbing a greased pole.

Read the ads in this paper. You will find the BEST propositions listed there each week.

A fellow started to read us the riot act the other day because we suppressed a certain unsavory piece of news. But when we mentioned a certain indiscretion of his which he thought was unknown he immediately saw the wisdom of our forbearance. But it's just human nature, you know. Such fellows always were and always will be.

Anybody who doesn't wish the President and his new bride-to-be all kinds of happiness is just a jealous old codger who would like to stand in his shoes.

The Rev. Cyrus Townsend Brady says that "woman's suffrage is an insult to God and man." Possibly—but not to Brady, as he appears to be neither God nor man.

To admit your faults is one of the greatest virtues of all.

SUBSCRIPTION ONE DOLLAR PER YEAR
Cash must accompany order. No announcement inserted until paid for

With his approval, we announce the subject of this sketch, as a Democratic candidate for Congress in this, the Ninth Congressional District, at the State primary in August, 1916. Ordinarily we do not approve of early announcements, as we do not think them productive of public good, yet in this instance it is fully justified as the district contains nineteen counties and one must start early and work late to make an active and systematic campaign, such as Judge Riley promises his friends to do.

Judge Riley was born in Nicholas county in April, 1866. He graduated from Kentucky Wesleyan College, Millersburg in 1884 and taught school at various places for the next ten years; he then studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1893 and during the years 1893-4 was principal of the West Liberty Academy and the following year taught at the Morehead Normal School. He then began the active practice of his profession and has since enjoyed a lucrative practice. He has always been a loyal Democrat and his popularity as a man is attested by the fact that he has twice been elected County Judge of Rowan county, which is largely Republican—the last time by a majority of 272—and now holds that important office. By economy and good business methods he has practically wiped out the large indebtedness which existed when he went into office and without increasing the taxes of the people has built several iron bridges—the first ever erected in the county—improved its highways and done a great many other things for the betterment of the people of our neighboring county.

As a clean Christian gentleman of sobriety, fitness and worth we present his claims to the Democrats of the district and ask for their careful consideration.

TRUE DEMOCRACY

As usual, Senator Beckham is correct on the question of the majority having the right to rule in party contests, as indicated by the following extract from one of his recent speeches in behalf of the Democratic ticket:

"Let us look at the questions in this campaign in a practical, business-like way. Do not let passion nor excitement enter in. You cannot make a good decision when you are angry. I do not believe in bitterness."

"I doubt if all of you here voted for all the candidates who were nominated. I know I did not. But I am a Democrat, and in the Democratic party the majority rules. Therefore I am for that whole ticket."

"We cannot have everything we want, and because my side does not triumph every time I won't quit playing and go home. Let's lay aside the differences of the primary. Let's elect the Democratic ticket that was nominated and keep Kentucky in the control of the Democratic party."

When a policeman on the local force, James C. Tipton, often at the risk of his own life, protected the lives and property of our citizens and no man can truthfully say he ever failed to respond to the call of duty. This will be his course as Chief of Police. He is his opponent's equal from any and every viewpoint and has the advantage of several years practical experience. He is not an unknown quantity. If fitness and qualifications count for anything he will win in a walk, which we confidently expect him to do.

Hon. Asa B. Pieratt is admittedly a gentleman of high character and ideals and as a member of the Kentucky House of Representatives, will by his every vote, reflect the best thought and sentiment of his district. He is in no danger, yet every Democrat should consider it both a duty and a pleasure to go to the polls next Tuesday and vote for him by making an "X" with his stencil in the circle under the Rooster.

The friends of Hon. H. V. McChesney are proud of the gallant fight he is making for the Democratic ticket. We admire the man who can take defeat gracefully and put party supremacy above personal interests.

A vote for James C. Tipton is a vote for "safety first."

NO ILLITERACY SUNDAY

October 31st. has been set aside by the Illiteracy Commission as "No Illiteracy Sunday" and ministers are urged to preach on the evil and blight of illiteracy and impress upon the educated the responsibility of helping the illiterate to escape from it. A glance at the following will show you exactly where Kentucky stands, won't you be one to help make the standing of your State better?

Kentucky's Rank Among the States

In total: Twelfth from bottom, thirty-seventh from top.
In white illiteracy—fifth from bottom, forty-third from top.
In native born white illiteracy—fifth from bottom, forty-fourth from top.
In negro illiteracy—seventh from bottom, forty-second from top.
In male illiteracy over 21 years of age—fourth from bottom, thirty-ninth from top.
In white male illiteracy over 21 years of age—fourth from bottom, forty-fifth from top.
In native born white male illiteracy over 21 years of age—third from bottom, forty-eighth from top.
In negro male illiteracy over 21 years of age—seventh from bottom, forty-second from top.

Kentucky has more illiterates than have Oklahoma, West Virginia and Indiana combined.

Kentucky has more illiterates than have the states of Wyoming, Idaho, Utah, Nevada, North Dakota, South Dakota, Washington, Oregon, Iowa, Kansas and Nebraska combined.

PARAGRAPHS FROM M'DERMOTT'S CONVENTION SPEECH

All concede that the gentleman you have nominated is a man of great ability, that all the walks of life in which he has been thrown, he has rendered splendid service.

In Congress he attracted attention. In his race for United States Senator he displayed great power as a popular orator and also gathered around him a circle of ardent and enthusiastic friends who made this race easy for him, a circle of friends that any man would be proud to have.

He is well fitted, indeed, to lead in this campaign in the coming fall, and I have no doubt of his election. I wish to say on behalf of the Democratic organization of Louisville that we will give him our cordial support.

Sunday and Monday—"The Campbells Are Coming!" The highest priced picture play produced this year will be presented as the headline attraction during the first part of the week beginning Sunday at the Alamo Theatre. The film is "The Campbells Are Coming!" In it will be seen Francis Ford and Grace Cunard, who will be remembered as the principals in "The Broken Coin" serial and also as the celebrities in "Lucille Love, the Girl of Mystery," one of the first big serial film plays presented. For the production of "The Campbells Are Coming!" which comes complete in four reels, an entire city was erected in California; more than 7,000 persons were employed as actors and the total cost of production is estimated around $250,000. By many of the foremost critics the film is admitted into the same class with D. W. Griffith's masterpiece of the screen, "The Birth of a Nation."

Five Hundred and Rook were the games enjoyed. The home was artistically decorated and the party was one of the most enjoyable of the season. An elegant luncheon of substantial was served.

Unique Entertainment.

Ringo's Hall was the scene of one of the most novel and beautiful entertainments ever given in Mt. Sterling on last Saturday afternoon. In the receiving line were the hostesses, Mrs. Allen Prewitt, Mrs. Charles B. Duerson and Miss Elizabeth Duerson. They were assisted in entertaining and seating the guests by Mrs. W. R. Thompson, Mrs. Pierce Winn, Mrs. Roger Barnes, Mrs. Howard VanAntwerp, Mrs. Mary Lockridge, Mrs. W. Bridges White, Mrs. J. O. Greene, Mrs. Albert Bourne, Mrs. A. L. Tipton, Mrs. Ben R. Turner, Mrs. John Stoffer, Mrs. James Kennedy, Mrs. Robert Howell, Miss Hattie Owings and Miss Proctor. Yellow and white was the pretty color scheme chosen and was effectively carried out. The large posts in the hall were trimmed with Southern smilax interwoven with yellow chrysanthemums. Vases of yellow and white chrysanthemums decorated the walls and the improvised stage at the east end was had a background of ferns with vases and jardiniere of the same flowers. Little Elizabeth Thompson and Evelyn Prewitt stood at the head of the stairs and received the cards. The frappe table was presided over by Mrs. Harry Ringo, Mrs. W. O. Hopper and Miss Allee Young, and the guests were served delicious lime ice before they were seated. The following program, consisting of vocal solos and recitations, was rendered by Mrs. Eleanor Carlton and Mrs. Eva Fitzgerald, of Chicago, who proved themselves artists.

The favors were Hallow'en emblems, miniature pumpkins, sheaves of wheat and ears of corn, and were pinned on by Mrs. Wm. H. Strossman and Mrs. John W. Burbridge. Nearly two hundred friends from this city and surrounding counties enjoyed the delightful hospitality of these popular hostesses.

DON'T GO TO SLEEP

Election day is but a short time away. In a few short hours the die will have been cast. Kentuckians will know whether, during the next four years, they will be under the management of the Democrats or the Republicans.

The issues have all been discussed. Every Kentuckian knows, or ought to know, who the contending candidates are and what they stand for. The time for action is at hand. The time for thought is past. It is the duty of every Democrat in Kentucky, every man who loves freedom and the rule of the people, not only to go to the polls himself but to see that his neighbor goes and casts a vote for Stanley and the rest of the ticket.

If, Mr. Democratic voter, there is a man living beside you who, for one reason or another, figures that his vote will not be needed, go after that man. Make him go with you to the polls. The Republicans are working tooth and nails. They are spending money like water in an effort to keep down the Democratic majority. A small Democratic majority will please the Republicans almost as much as would the election of their ticket, for if the majority for the Democrats is slight, the Republicans, though defeated, will still be able to say that the country is turning toward Republicanism and that a Republican President will be elected next year.

Should the race be close every Democrat in the State ought to hang his head in shame. We have the votes. Let's cast them. Let no Democrat be compelled to say to himself on the morning of November 3rd, "I wish I had gone to the polls."

Are You Too Fat?

If you are too stout don't take fat-reducing medicines. Cut down on your diet, get out-of-door exercise, and you will assume normal lines and reduce to normal weight. Avoid sweets, eggs, cream, fat meats, and especially potatoes. Live mainly on lettuce, spinach, cabbage, lean meats, young onions, celery, tomatoes, etc. Take salted toast instead of bread and butter. If you cease to give your body fat-making foods you will cease creating fat cells. It is no trick to reduce if you practice self-denial.

Method.

There is no one able or anxious to deny the value of a method. But there are many who realize that method is not everything, and that strict adherence to it sometimes becomes a nuisance. There is a madness in hard and fast rules. The strict adherence to some method is almost as bad as having no method at all. We should remember that our actions have, at all times, to be guided by circumstances.

Every day we see or hear of something mighty good and praiseworthy about some one in this town, and it just clinches us in the opinion that it is a "good place to live." And we hear and see good deeds and traits of the farmers out in the country, and that, too, gives us a mighty fine feeling. A person might travel a long way and see many worse places to live than in this town and among these good towns and country people. It suits us.

Uncle Sam and the Central and South American republics are recognizing Carranza and his government, but hanged if we would want to recognize the cuss or any of his horde in a dark alley.

OH! MY BACK!

The Expression of Many a Kidney Sufferer in Mount Sterling.

A stubborn backache is cause to suspect kidney trouble. When the kidneys are inflamed and swollen, stooping brings a sharp twinge in the small of the back that almost takes the breath away. Doan's Kidney Pills revive sluggish kidneys—relieve aching backs. Here's Mount Sterling proof:

Mrs. Laura Willoughby, 17 Strothers St., Mt. Sterling, says: "I had pains through my back and kidneys and was dizzy and nervous. At night I was restless and mornings was weak and tired. A neighbor advised me to use Doan's Kidney Pills and I got a box from Duerson's Drug Store. They gave me great relief and I now feel better in every way."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Willoughby had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.—Adv. (16-2t)

Four hundred and fifty million Chinese tremble at the menace of seventy million Japanese—a giant helpless at the feet of a pigmy. Japan has a magnificent army of seasoned and disciplined veteran troops and a complete equipment of modern guns and munitions of war, while China is without the means of self-defense.

PATRIOTISM AND PREPAREDNESS

We read much in the press on the subject of national preparedness, and for our country's sake it is well that it is so. No important country ever stood in greater need of it than we stand today.

But while taking up the subject of building warships and raising army reserves, let us not overlook the matter of patriotism in local communities, for it is upon these people the nation must lean to a great extent in time of stress.

Newspaper publicity and the influence of our being plunged into war is doing much to convert the adult mind to the necessity of an adequate preparation for defense against invasion, but we should go farther than the adult.

We should begin today to inject a feeling of patriotism into the hearts of the youth of our local communities, and a devotion to the flag of our country, and a determination to uphold the dignity and preserve the integrity of the nation at all times and under all conditions.

Since the days of '61 and '65 the patriotism of the American people has been declining day by day, until 1915 finds us a nation of adults with but slight conception of what the flag should mean to us, and with less thought as to the future security of our country.

Patriotism has been left to shift for itself and has gone down in the waters of commercialism.

It is time for a change, and the change should begin today.

In every school and in every home of the country little children should be taught to love and respect the stars and stripes, to look upon them as the symbol of liberty and the champion of right and of the weak and the oppressed.

They should be taught that love of country ranks next to their love of God, even to the giving of life itself in its defense.

If the same policy had been pursued in our homes and in our schools and other public places during the past fifty years the nation would not be in its present precarious condition. Patriotism alone would have demanded and secured action by the government and the Congress, and the United States today would have been in a state of defense sufficient to guarantee it against aggressive action by any foreign government.

It is useless now to weep over the errors of the past, but we can at least take action to prevent our children facing the same condition of affairs after we have passed away.

If you want a forceful illustration of the lack of patriotism in this country, and of the ignorance of the symbolism of the flag, just watch the little children at the close of some parade. You will most likely see them sitting on curbstones wiping the dust from their shoes with miniature flags of their country.

And when you have seen this, be a patriot yourself and go home and begin the imparting of patriotic impulses to your own offspring, and insist that the teachers in our schools do their duty to their country as well as to the community.

Protect the adults of tomorrow from the fate that menaces those of today.

Every little while some fellow lets out an exasperating yawn about the country being hard up and going to the dogs. It would if they could have their own way, but fortunately they can't. These old U. S. A. are a long way from being busted, and everybody knows it but the yawpers.

They say beauty is only skin deep. But it has a practical value to its possessor when angling for an American millionsaire.

WHAT DO YOU THINK OF IT?

Many morning papers—that is, those papers which are newspapers and not merely political organs—carried a very welcome dispatch from New York reporting a notable general revival of freight traffic by the railroads entering that city, a revival, so the dispatch said, unequaled since 1907.

It was good news of vital interest to everyone who reads it; but there were many who rely upon so-called newspapers to furnish them with the news who had no opportunity to read it. The chances are that the man who sees only Republican or Bull Moose organs was not allowed to read it at all. Certainly the Republican and Bull Moose organs in this neighborhood closed their columns absolutely to it.

And this notwithstanding the fact that the dispatch was a regular Associated Press dispatch, sent out by a strictly nonpartisan news-gathering organization whose sole business is to collect and distribute to its subscribers the news, and upon which the very papers which refused to publish it depend for their general news.

It was rejected by these publications not because it was not legitimate news, good news, to which their readers had every right, but because it was inconsistent with the cry of "hard times," the only ground on which they are now trying to get the offices at present held by Democrats. They have proclaimed hard times; they insist that the Democrats are responsible for hard times; they assert that it will be hard times and nothing but hard times until they are given the jobs and salaries of the present officeholders. They have sworn that the horse is sixteen feet high—the only sort of horse that can do them any good—and they do not propose, if they can help it, to allow any such nuisances as fact and truth to lower the altitude of the beast one inch. Improving business? Heavy trade? To the waste basket with them! Let no one dare whisper of such until after the elections.

What do you think of a political party whose one reliance is on such tactics?

And what do you think of self-styled newspapers which studiously suppress such news?

Buy it at home this Christmas. Keep Prosperity in this town. It's good for all of us.

If you hear a fellow cussing this town remonstrate with him. If he don't stop, choke him. If he keeps it up, punch him in the jaw. And if he does it again take him out and bury him. The town will not miss him.

Thanks, that dollar looked good to us.

WEAK, AILING CHILD

Made Strong By Delicious Vinol. Lakeport, N. H.—"Our little girl 8 years of age was in a debilitated, run-down condition and had a stubborn cough so she was weak and ailing all the time. Nothing helped her until we tried Vinol. Then her appetite increased and she is strong and well, and I wish other parents of weak, delicate children would try Vinol."—Geo. A. COLLINS.

This is because Vinol contains the tissue building, strengthening cod liver elements and the tonic iron which a weak and run-down system needs.

CLASSIFIED TAXES.

Whenever there is any talk about a lower rate of taxes on intangible personal property a great howl goes up from the owners of tangible property, who affect to believe it a gross injustice. Intangible personalty consists mostly of Stocks, Bonds, Notes, Cash, Accounts, Mortgages, and other such evidences of enterprise; all of which are limited by law or custom to a certain percent of earnings. No other kind of property has the limits of its profits fixed by Law. A man may lawfully earn all he can in his store, his shop or on his farm. He may charge what he pleases for his professional services, for his manufactured wares, for his cattle, his hogs and his corn, wheat and tobacco, but when he comes to lending money, which the investment in Securities includes, he is strictly limited to a gross income never exceeding six per cent, and is it fair to exact half or more of his income for taxes when others get off with perhaps one-tenth of their earnings from other kinds of invested property, farming, professions and business? The argument is all in favor of the money lender, as his capital is essential to all industrial improvement and cheap money greases the wheels of progress and prosperity.

TAX AMENDMENT

TO BE VOTED ON AT THE NOVEMBER ELECTION.

The Tax Amendment to be again voted on at the November Election will, if adopted, authorize the Legislature to enact a new Tax Law that will subject the enormous amount of personal property in the shape of Stocks, Bonds, Notes and accounts now escaping taxation to a fair share of the burden and reduce the taxes on Land and Improvements. Every taxpayer should vote for it, as any Law enacted under its provisions must be ratified by the people before it can be enforced and this guarantees a fair Law.

The Amendment.

"The General Assembly shall provide by law an annual tax, which, with other resources, shall be sufficient to defray the estimated expenses of the Commonwealth for each fiscal year. Taxes shall be levied and collected for public purposes only and shall be uniform upon all property of the same class subject to taxation within the territorial limits of the authority levying the tax; and all taxes shall be levied and collected by general laws.

"The General Assembly shall have power to divide property into classes and to determine what class or classes of property shall be subject to local taxation. Bonds of the State and of Counties, municipalities, taxing and school districts shall not be subject to taxation.

"Any law passed or enacted by the General Assembly pursuant to the provisions of or under this amendment or amended section of the constitution, classifying property and providing a lower rate of taxation on personal property, tangible or intangible, than that upon real estate, shall be subject to the referendum power of the people."

This amendment was ratified by an enormous majority at the election in 1912, but was pronounced invalid by the Court of Appeals because it had been advertised only sixty, instead of ninety, days as the Constitution provides.

It has been advertised in legal form and in time for this year's election and should receive a larger majority than before, as Tax paying voters have had time to study the question and discover the faults in the present Tax Law.

REPORT OF WISCONSIN TAX COMMISSION.

"Justice in taxation can only be attained by strict compliance with the law. This is proven by universal experience. There is no other way. With rare exceptions, when an assessor violates the law and sets up a standard of his own he either inflicts an injury upon some individual taxpayer or else he does injustice to every other taxpayer in the State. As a general rule, every step he takes outside the straight and narrow path provided by law leads to greater and more glaring inequalities, and in many cases . . . degenerates into a mere travesty on justice."

FROM REPORT OF KENTUCKY TAX COMMISSION, 1909.

"There are two reasons why the general property tax has failed in operation. First, because under modern conditions it cannot be enforced effectively. Secondly, because of a more or less conscious recognition of the fact that strict enforcement would result in a still greater injustice than now prevails."

"The attempt to tax all property at a uniform standard of valuation and at the same rate, regardless of its special characteristics, earning power or the benefits derived from the expenditures of government, violates the primary rules of just taxation and offends the natural sense of justice."

Farmer Williams has decided to catch all the frogs out of his pond. This will be done to make room for the spring crop of fish.

Capt. John Plunkett, editor of the Coon Holler Index, says: "We are so unlucky that if we had a balloon that could raise us to the stars, some bailiff would invent an airship which would overtake us before we got halfway."

John Dashner has promised us a shower of rain within a few days. What the Doctor does not know could easily be put inside the Wild Onion school house.

W. C. Herman is building a residence on Musket Ridge. He is building it just at the back of an old hog pen, which can be used as a front yard.

Under cover of total darkness someone went to the Dog Hill church the other night and carried away the bell. Unless it is found by the Deputy Constable before Sunday preaching will be postponed. The preacher says the ringing of the bell is the only method he has of reminding the congregation that it is Sunday again.

Since there is an old tradition that jay birds go to Hell on Friday, John Dashner is going to turn loose his pet jay bird next Friday and follow him.

Miss Fruzie Allsop made a flying trip to Rye Straw with her canary bird Thursday morning.

PARAGRAPHS FROM M'CHESNEY

May I recall something that happened about the 6th of August in Anderson county. I was making a speech and smiling. I indulged in the statement that the smile would not come off, and some one way back in the audience yelled, "We will take it off tomorrow." But he didn't know how good a Democrat I am. We have differed. Some of us believed one way and conscientiously. I am sure there is not a Democrat in Kentucky that doubts but that I followed the dictates of my conscience in the position I took, but above all question of personal opinions is the great Democratic doctrine that the majority has the right to rule. The majority has spoken and I cheerfully submit to the will of the majority.

LET IT BE BY ACCLAMATION

If the reports coming in from all sections of the State to the Democratic headquarters at the Galt House are half way correct it would save not only much aching of hearts of our Republicans friends but a whole lot of their trust furnished dough if their ticket would quit now. From the first district it is nothing to it but Stanley. The second will be close behind it as this district is Mr. Stanley's home district and the voters there simply adore this gifted and logical son. The third will give him a splendid majority, while the fourth will be found piling up its old time seven thousand to the good. The fifth will do its duty and so will the sixth, followed by a large one in the seventh and fair ones in the eighth and ninth. Report from the tenth is extremely encouraging and in Morrow's home district it now appears Stanley will cut his majority one half, so where, for the love of Mike, is there any show coming for the Republicans. Let's make it unanimous for Stanley and go home and rest for awhile so as to give our friends the Republicans a breathing spell.

VOTES, NOT TALK, COUNT

We would again impress upon the Democrats of Kentucky that the election is not won by bragging about a big majority we are going to get, but by turning out and voting so that we may have a majority. —Elizabethtown News.
